Monday morning at 10 o'clock the funeral of Frederick W. Hoss was held from his late home, No. 90 Boswell avenue, there being a number of relatives and friends in attendance. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Lewellyn Pratt, pastor emeritus of the Broadway Congregational church. There were several handsome floral forms. The hearers were Joseph J. Fields, Osten Ferguson, Henry R. Taft and Edgar Mallett. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where a committal service was read. Funeral Director Gager had charge of the arrangements.

Miss Stasis Levan.

At 8.30 o'clock Monday morning the funeral of Miss Stasis Levan was held from the home of her father, Frank Levan, rear No. 168 North Main street, and at St. Joseph's church a requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Ambot. There were many present, including a delegation from the choir of the church. Six friends acted as bearers. At the service the choir of the church sang and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where a committal service was read. Shea & Burke had charge of the arrangements.

The age of the deceased was 18 years and 4 months and she was born in Poland, the daughter of Frank and Alice Mezeski Levan. Most of her life was passed in Norwich and she was a favorite with her many friends. The deceased passed away on Saturday after a long filness. She is survived by her father, a stepmother and several stepbrothers.

The party left the city on the early afternoon train, returning via the evening express that by special arrangement stopped at the beach. The afternoon was spent in an informal way and 6 o'clock a tempting supper was served. An hour of special entertainment followed. A business session was held, at which time applications for membership in the organization were received and the following elected to membership, Rev. and Mrs. Prederic L. Werking. The first regular meeting of the Round Table will be held Tuesday evening. October 5, at the home of Mrs. Frank H. Allen at 90 Williams street, at which time the organization will begin its year's study.

AT BROADWAY THEATER.

"The Clansman."

There were two performances of "The Clansman" at the Broadway theater on Monday at which good sized audiences were present to witness the play which has aroused so much interest here within the past week. The discussion evidently brought out many of the curious who wanted to find out for themselves just what the play is. There may have been scenes which in certain sections would have aroused racial antagonism, but it could hardly be expected that it would in Norwich, where only rare instances could be shown of any feeling.

It is not until the third act that the strength of the play begins to be revealed the preceding acts being harmless snough pictures of the liberated slaves and the poverty stricken South Carolinlans in the period following the war—interesting pictures, perhaps, but not calculated to make any special appeals to the emotions except in the rare speeches of the chivairous young southern hero of the tale. In the third act comes the death of the 13 year old daughter of a southerner of the better class, which is narrated and not acted; the trial of the negro, whose lustful pursuit of her drove her over a cliff into the river, by the Ku Klux Klan in its cavern; his description of the crime while under hypnotic influence of the child's father, and his condemnation to a terrible death as a warning to the negroes, whose conduct in power was begroes, whose conduct in power was beoming increasingly unbearable. The final act shows the negro lieu tenant governor as sultor for the daughter of the white abolitionist daughter of the white abolitionist from the north, whose conscientious efforts to bring about the general acceptance of equality between black and white have helped to put the negroes in power. The daughter is horrified and her father as strongly moved by this bringing home of the doctrine he has sought to compel the southern whites to accept. The powerful negro suitor prepares to compel her marriage to him when the Ku Klux mep appear opportunely and dramatically end a situation full of ugly possibilities.

Incidentally are shown the mean characteristics of an ex-convict white

Incidentally are shown the mean characteristics of an ex-convict white governor and of the carpet baggers from the north, trading on the ignorance of the negroes, and the misdirected zeal of the Puritan abolitionists who swing to another extreme in efforts to bring the black man from the depths of slavery.

As Ben Cameron the work of Arthur DeVoy was particularly good, and playing opposite to him Evelyn Faber as Eisle Stoneham made an excellent impression. Their love match added the life to the play and the latter is well selected for the charming young southern girl. As Governor Shrimp, a typical southern politician of the early day, J. R. Lorraine was satisfactory, while the role of the educated negro day, J. R. Lorraine was satisfactory, while the role of the educated negro of the reconstruction days was finely done by J. R. Garry, although the hole is not a pleasant one. As the abolitionist John B. Cooke was excellent. W. A. Jordan gave a clever interpretation of the comedy role of Neise, while Maud Durand as Eve created many a laugh. Edna Davis and Vinnie Burns added to the interesting scenes, while the other members gave scenes, while the other members gave

INJURIES MAY BE FATAL James Bilcliff Didn't Give Notice That He Wanted to Get Off of East Lyme

On Monday evening James Bilcliff, aged 35, jumped off the East Lyme electric car in Waterford near the Jordan cemetery, unbeknown to the conductor, who had gone forward into the car to collect fares. The car was under full headway and when the conductor missed him the car was runback until he was found beside the track. He had been on the rear platform and without his fare. Conductor Gadbois picked him up and put him aboard another car and he was taken to the Memorial hospital in New London. It is feared he has suffered internal injuries.

TO PROTECT INVESTORS AGAINST MINING SHARKS. Plan to Enable Prospective Purchasers

to Know Value of Mining Securities. New York, Sept. 27.-The Mining

New York, Sept. 27.—The Mining and Metallurgical society of America, after a year of work, has adopted anofficial opinion of what facts the annual reports of mining companies should contain. The idea is to create a condition in mining securities which will benefit all investors. The business of infiating values of mining stock is deplored in the opinion.

The society is composed of mining engineers, mine managers, metallurgists and geologists. The society holds that every mining corporation should publish an annual report within ninety days of the close of its fiscal year. This report should contain tabulated statements of work accomplished, results obtained, expenditures and receipts from the beginning, marketable products of each year, sums received from the sale of them, together with the net earnings and the disposition made on them.

the net earnings and the disposition made on them.

It also calls for a review of work with statements of assets and liabilities, showing all the details of the capitalization of the company and other information of the financial condition, and, in addition, for a statement of ore reserves and a competent estimate of the probable life of the mine.

AT THE AUDITORIUM. Fine Vaudeville and Moving Pictures

With vaudeville numbers that are the top line class and well selec-moving pictures and illustrated son the Auditorium gives promise of a the top line class and well selected moving pictures and illustrated songs, the Auditorium gives promise of a big week judging from the applause bestowed by well filled houses at matinee and evening hours Monday. Most lenghable of all and one of the biggest screams ever seen at the theater is the Dutch comedy team, Heusel and Walah, who have the house in an uproar from beginning to end of their turn. Dorothy Reed and Alfred Reed are favorites in their novel quick change singing and dancing act, Dorothy doing a toe dence and a highland dance in clever sayle, while Alfred has a sympathetic voice that wins his audience every time. They close with a pretty duet and fioral ship scene in the limelight.

The musical part of the bill also has some pleasing contributors in Sprague and Dixon, with sprightly original songs and dialogue. Pretty June Leveny, singing comedienne, gets, a good hand for her three song hits.

Farmers Intend to Combine.

A number of the farmers in Ledyard and vicinity whose lands are much used during the hunting season are making an effort to form a comare making an effort to form a com-bination with the view of making those who hunt pay for their pastime. One or two farmers in Center Groton whose lands adjoin Ledyard have been asked to join the combination, but as yet have not decided one way or the other. The Ledyard men have prepared linen signs and are posting their property. If their plans carry a fee of $5 will be exacted from every man who hunts on their territory, the fee to cover all the land owned by the farmers who form the combine.
